A TRAIN ATTACKED.

Three Desperadoes Attack an A. T. & S. F. Train at Coolidge,

But Fail to Secure the Treasure in the Express Car.

They Murder the Engineer and Wound the Fireman.

KANSAS CITY September 29—News was received here of a train robbery on the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railway at or near Coolidge Kansas 170 miles west of here about 2 o'clock this morning Reports received this morning were very conflicting It was first stated that two men were killed and a large amount of booty secured A later dispatch, giving fuller particulars, states that the engineer was killed and a fireman wounded but no money secured by the robbers The train was the regular east-bound passenger, which left Denver last night, due here tonight Coolidge is a small cattle station and aside from the telegraph operator almost uninhabited. As the train pulled out from Coolidge three men appeared and ordered the engineer to stop He refused, and was instantly shot dead The fireman was also shot through the breast and badly hurt, though not fatally The men then assailed the express car, but Samuel Peterson, the express messenger, was prepared for them and made such a vigorous fight that the robbers were driven off Finding the train aroused and themselves likely to be worsted, the robbers then beat a retreat, having failed to secure the treasure which they were after Information was at once telegraphed to stations along the line and a special train started for Coolidge with a posse of armed men in pursuit

DODGE CITY, September 29—The Cannon Ball on the A T & S F was attacked at Coolidge, by a gang of cowboys this morning and the engineer killed, and the fireman is so badly injured that he will die The conductor was shot at several times, but escaped injury The express car was attacked, but the messenger repulsed them A posse are now in hot pursuit of the robbers and a desperate fight will no doubt ensue when they are overhauled

KANSAS CITY, September 29—The Evening Star's special from Dodge City, Kansas, says The body of John Hilton the engineer killed in the attempted robbery at Coolidge was brought here this morning, and a coroner's inquest is now being held Hilton leaves a wife and four children, who reside here The wife is unconscious, as the result of the terrible shock Deputy Sheriffs Mathers, Nelson, Carey, Bell, Coombs and others went from here on a special train and are now in pursuit of the robbers They are heavily armed and will no doubt resist arrest. Parties on the train say they can be identified if caught Faddle, the fireman, was shot in the mouth, the ball coming out behind the jaw, making a most painful wound The train was in charge of Conductor Greeley

PUEBLO, Col, September 29—The Plumb derbolt train, which left Pueblo last night at 7 o'clock for Kansas City, while standing on the siding at Coolidge, near the state line, was attacked by a crowd of men supposed to be cowboys or horse thieves, who began an indiscriminate shooting at the fireman and engineer John Hilton, the engineer, was shot through the chin and instantly killed He leaves a wife and several children at Dodge City, where he resides The fireman's name was not learned but he was also shot, and is said to have since died Conductor Greeley, when he heard the shooting, ran forward to see what the trouble was and was fired upon by one of the would be robbers and murderers His face was badly burned by powder, but he was not wounded He mounted the cab and would have started the engine forward, but becoming frightened the robbers fled The intention was to rob the express car, but the thieves did not get that far No passengers were hurt Officers of Colorado and Kansas are after the murderers and robbers, backed by a strong party of citizens, and if the gang are nabbed it will go hard with them

AUTHENTIC ACCOUNT

KANSAS CITY, September 29.—The Santa Fe train, which was attacked at Coolidge at two o'clock this morning, arrived here tonight Statements of the affair by the people on the train differ considerably from the brief account received by telegraph Owing to the darkness and the fact that so few people were about it was difficult to learn the exact story of the occurrence. It is known that two robbers were engaged in the fight, and it is generally believed there was a third party engaged C C James, postal clerk, tells the following story The train had stopped at the station and the conductor had just signalled to start when a man with drawn revolver climbed on the engine and ordered the engineer to surrender A scuffle ensued

Meanwhile a man opened the door of the express car stumbling as he entered He at once opened fire on the messenger who crouched behind a box The robber fired four times and the messenger returned the fire, when the former retreated from the car just as the fireman, who had left the engine was crossing the platform The robber fired and Faddle, the fireman, fell senseless with a bullet through his neck Meantime the first robber, who had been forced backwards by the engineer, fired at him and the engineer fell dead with a shot through the head James hearing the firing, had gone to the door of his car and witnessed the attack on the express car By this time people had come out of the train and the robbers had disappeared Only a few persons witnessed the shooting,

B S Patterson, the messenger, who resides here, told about the same story as James He declined to say how much money there was in the express car Everybody seemed dazed by the shooting and it was some time before a pursuit was organized One theory of the affair is that the robbers had accomplices further down the road, and the intention was to run the train a short distance and stop The assailants were somewhat under the influence of liquor and the plan miscarried Two strangers were seen about the platform before the train arrived As a curious coincidence it is related that a train was attacked a few miles west of Coolidge, across the line in Colorado, just one year ago to-night and the Wells, Fargo express safe robbed

DODGE CITY, Kas, September 28—The body of Hilton the engineer, killed at Coolidge this morning was brought to this city and an inquest held, and the body will tomorrow be sent to Milwaukee, his old home Deputy Sheriff Mather, in charge of the Dodge City posse, was met at Coolidge by Sheriff Parsons, of Bent county, Col, and they arrested two men and brought them to this city on a special this evening and lodged them in jail The feeling is intensely bitter here, but those men are not as yet fully identified and no steps will be taken to avenge Hilton's death on uncertainties Another man has this evening been arrested at Garden City and will be examined in the morning It is thought that only three were engaged in the shooting, and circumstantial evidence is strong, but being masked it is hard to fully recognize them

Faddle has a bad flesh wound, but will recover

TOPEKA, Kas, September 29—Facts concerning the attempted train robbery at Coolidge this morning as received from passengers and officials of the road are as follows The train remained at Coolidge ten minutes When Conductor Greeley stepped forward to signal to go he saw two men ahead of him, one of whom jumped on the platform between the cars and the other ran into the side door of the express car, landing on his hands and knees Greeley asked what he was doing there, when he half arose and pulled a revolver and shot in his face, so close that the powder burnt it, but he was not hit. The robbers then turned and fired at Peterson, the express messenger, who returned the fire and then built a barricade around him The fellow ran out of the door and escaped, probably with the one who took to the platform Conductor Greeley went to the engine and found John Hilton the engineer dead with a bullet through the head and Fireman Faddle shot in the breast. Faddle stated that a man jumped on the engine and ordered Hilton to pull out. Hilton answered that he would when he received orders, and the robber then shot him dead and fired at Faddle The plan was preconcerted, the wires having been crossed east of Coolidge since September 24d

At half past five o clock a later dispatch announced the arrest of two men, one of whom is supposed to have fired at Peterson The robber is about five feet ten inches tall, stoop shouldered, long, thin nose It is believed he can be identified. Fifteen hundred dollars reward is offered for the arrest of the parties

The Wells, Fargo Express Co refuse to divulge the amount of treasure in the car It is rumored that there was thirty thousand dollars in a safe consigned from Denver to Chicago, but nothing definite is known beyond the company's officials

KANSAS CITY, September 30—At half past one o'clock this morning no further intelligence has been received from the scene of the train robbery The train men, those who might identify the robbers, came on with the train this morning It is generally believed that if the murderers are captured and identified their shrift will be short

LOSSING A CITY

KANSAS CITY, September 29—The Journal's Las Vegas, N M, special says A prominent railroad man of this city, speaking of the Coolidge train robbery, said to-day that he believed the gang of robbers went from New Mexico to do the job There are four in the gang He said they went east a few days ago The original design was to take the train on New Mexican soil, but the division superintendent was apprised of the intended attack and took precautionary measures which defeated the object of the gang, and sent them to Kansas Dave Matthews, known as "Mysterious Dave," who is leading the pursuit, was formerly of Las Vegas and ferretted out the gang which robbed a train here in 187[illegible]

Haviland's Trial

DENVER, September 29—The Haviland murder case was continued in the district court this morning Additional evidence was given to the effect that Haviland was chased out of the saloon and fired at by Ising, and only returned the fire after he had been twice shot at A verdict of acquittal or manslaughter is expected

GENERAL NEWS.

Twenty-four Thousand People Witness the Coming Wonder,

Jay Eye See, Beat St. Julien in Three Straight Heats.

San Francisco Alarmed at the Arrival of a Fever-Laden Vessel

A Great Race

LEXINGTON PARK September 29—The great trot for $5,000 between the celebrated trotters Jay Eye See and St Julien caused the largest concourse of people to assemble on the track that has been seen on any race track in America within two years At 2 45 there were 5,000 vehicles in the enclosure Many notables are present, among them Wm Vanderbilt and Frank Work The betting is very heavy St Julien still has the call at 100 to 60 The track is very heavy in spots Wiseacres claim that Jay Eye See cannot trot in the mud

Jay Eye See has just appeared on the track He appears in excellent form When he finished his exercise he was greeted with thunders of applause. Lithers will handle the ribbons during the contest Orin Hickok will drive St Julien Both horses are now in sheds on the track, guarded by a large force of policemen They are having a rather arduous job in keeping the great crowd back that is surging and scrambling about the sheds The track is being scraped, and by the time the race begins will be in very fair condition Twenty four thousand tickets have thus far been sold The crowd awaiting admittance extends as far as the eye can reach Betting has suddenly dropped, and from present appearances St. Julien will start favorite at 100 to 60

3 20 p m—The horses are now being rung to the post.

The first heat was started at 3 45 St. Julien at the pole. At the third attempt the competitors got the word with St Julien half a length ahead under rein In rounding the turn Jay Eye See was at St Julien's wheels After getting fairly under way Jay Eye See began to draw on St. Julien The excitement became intense Abreast the quarter pole St. Julien led by quarter of a length—The backs of both animals were now as level as a billiard table and were moving pieces of machinery Approaching the half mile post Jay Eye See drew up even with his antagonist. At the hill, fifty yards from the three-quarter post, Jay Eye See broke but after two skips he immediately settled down to work again and rapidly overhauled St. Julien The excitement now reached a white heat. On turning into the home stretch Jay Eye See was again at St. Julien's wheels, but Hickok carried him into the deep mud, at the same time keeping St. Julien in the hard track. The struggle down the straight track was grand, Jay Eye See gaining at every stride. Fifty yards from the wire St. Julien led by half a length but was faltering and broke when about thirty feet from the wire. He passed under the wire on a run, leading by a head The judges, in consequence of St. Julien's passing over the score running, gave the heat to Jay Eye See. Time by quarters, —first quarter, 35 seconds; half mile, 1 05¾; three quarters, 1 42¼, mile, 2 30¼ The decision gave general satisfaction The betting was now 100 to 90 in favor of St Julien

Second Heat—The horses coaled out nicely at 4 45 p m Jay Eye See took the pole. At starting St. Julien led a length Lithers immediately took a pull on Jay Eye See and waited until he got straightened out for the quarter post before letting him out On reaching the quarter post St. Julien led two open lengths, but soon after passing the post Jay Eye See began to close the gap and trotted so rapidly that he reached St. Julien's withers abreast the half mile post St. Julien seemed in trouble, but was trotting in good form. The flyers then made for the hill. St Julien seemed to take up-hill work more kindly and at three furlongs from home the pair were trotting on level terms Jay Eye See was now forcing the pace, and St. Julien's driver took him in hand preparatory to a hard finish Coming into the straight Jay Eye See led three parts of a length. The finish was terrific. It was simply wonderful how the animals could keep their feet in the yelling and hooting of the immense crowd Midway down the straight St. Julien made a grand effort under punishment to head his antagonist, but Jay Eye See was unapproached and captured the heat by half a length well in hand, Time—first quarter, 2 [illegible] half mile, 1 06¾, three-quarters, 1 40½, mile, 2 18 [illegible]

Steve Maxwell and mate were driven a mile in 2.16½ against time

After the heat betting on the next heat between Jay Eye See and St Julien was 100 to 0 in favor of the former The pools have stopped pool selling.

Third heat—The horses were again sent away at the first effort. This time Jay Eye See led by half a length on passing the score. The little horse trotted in capital style and straightened out for the quarter post, leading by a length. He passed the mark fully two lengths in advance Nearing the half mile post St. Julien came at his competitor very rapidly and entered into the third quarter at Jay Eye See's wheel Half way up the hill St Julien quit leaving Jay Eye See to come in winning the heat and race, amid tremendous applause, by three lengths Time—First quarter, 35 seconds; half mile 1 06 ¾ three-quarters, 1 42 mile, 2 19

Majolica trotted a mile against his record of 2 10 but failed to beat it

Importing Yellow Fever

SAN FRANCISCO, September 29—The steamer Newburn from Guaymas arrived in port to-day with yellow fever on board As the news of the expected arrival of the steamer had already reached here quarantine officials were on the lookout and immediately on her arrival took the vessel in charge The captain without delay stated that there were two cases of yellow fever on board including Second Officer Graham then lying at the point of death and who has since died The quarantine officer at once issued orders prohibiting communication with the shore The captain states that the disease developed after leaving Guaymas Doubts existed as to the character of the fever but when black vomit manifested itself he was satisfied that the disease was yellow fever The second officer, who has died since the arrival of the steamer this morning, was first to succumb Since then the Newburn has signalled another death, and still another is momentarily expected to die

Measures were promptly taken to give the steamer a thorough fumigating, and as the vessel is lying out in the storm, with full exposure to the winds and rain which began falling this afternoon it is believed and hoped the city and surrounding localities will escape from the dreaded disease It is impossible to deny that the present season has been a most favorable one for such epidemics The heat is greater, trade winds die away and sewers assert their filthy condition This afternoon however, a good breeze is blowing If it keeps up and a rigid quarantine is maintained, there need be but little reason for fear

Consul Willard, writing from Guaymas under date of September 24th, to Captain Birmingham, agent of the Meacham Steamship company, of this city, says the fever at that point is considerably abated, that since August 25th about two hundred persons have died, none of any prominence except Alsur, owner of the Trinidad mine, Sonora. The railroad company had lost eighteen men including the cashier and two telegraph operators Consul Willard estimates that fully two thirds of the population of the city have had the fever Not even one of the doctors escaped but they all recovered

J. I. RAND Secretary

Although there are $114,960,197 in silver in the treasury, $92,651,081 of it are in circulation in the form of silver certificates. Would it not be a good plan to increase the rate of coinage and issue for it silver certificates which shall take the place of the greenbacks? This would give us a sound currency and give us a good use for our silver.

Lord Coleridge, in his speech at the dinner given by the Hon Emory S. Storrs in his honor at Chicago, on Wednesday night, spoke of his father's high regard for many prominent Americans of fifty years ago. He also stated that Horace Binney, of Philadelphia, was his father's most intimate friend. It was a very fortunate thing that Mr Coleridge met so excellent a type of an American as Mr Binney. He was a citizen of the type of the elder Quincy. While always in public he neither sought nor accepted office, unless of the humblest kind. Though of scholarly tastes, he recognized no higher duties than those of citizenship. He took an active interest in public affairs and never was suspected of having selfish motives. He showed how a life could be honorable and honored without seeking or accepting honors. His greatest ambition was to be useful. He was perhaps the best illustration of the beneficent influence an educated man can wield in the state.

We fail to see any special profit in the discussion as to whether Senator Hill was or was not a silver advocate in 1870. He is one now and this is enough for the present. There is a great deal of cant about much of the alleged silver advocacy. There are a good many people who say they are for silver when they do not understand a single phase of the question. It is not of the slightest importance how Senator Hill stood on the question in 1870, and the reminiscences which have been furnished on the subject are not of the smallest value. They have not even the merit of being interesting. If he is a recent convert it is at least worth while to note that he is the only person who has been called upon for an article upon the subject by the greatest medium of American opinion. It strikes us that this squabble is small.—[Denver Tribune.

We are inclined to agree with the Tribune. But still there are people ignorant enough to be deceived by the ignorance of the Times which attacked Senator Hill's loyalty to silver because he did what every intelligent friend of silver in congress did, i. e., opposed the Warner silver bill.

In our article yesterday we said that the present convention system was perfect in securing to a party the results of its victory. But there is one part of the system that is not yet perfect. As a party man must vote for his party's candidate to have his vote count, it is important that the nominee of a convention shall be the choice of the majority. Our convention system in this is not always successful. This is because of packed primaries and an unfair representation. Each state is represented by twice its representation in congress. In a republican convention this gives about three times the per capita representation to the republicans of Kentucky and Missouri that it gives to the republicans in Iowa and Kansas. The last few years have increased this evil so that the decision of a convention has not the binding force it once had. The convention is the only place where preferences for party candidates can be expressed. After the nomination, the party man has no choice of candidates. It is important, therefore, that this candidate should be the choice of the majority of the party and also be nominated by fair means. To secure this, there is likely to be in the next four years large modifications in our way of expressing a choice for candidates in primaries and intermediate conventions. This is the question involved in our primary laws. If the evils are not met it will end in the overthrow of the convention system because its decisions will be no longer respected.

Judge W. D. Kelley announces that on the opening of congress he will immediately move for the repeal of the internal revenue tax on whiskey and tobacco. The ostensible reason for this is to relieve the burdens of the mother who uses camphor and the father who smokes his pipe. The real reason is to reduce the income of the government so that there shall not be a revision of the tariff. If he is successful, he will immediately take over $100,000,000 from our annual income, by abolishing a tax which is not felt. It will be bad practical economy because abolishing our lightest as well as most productive tax. It will be bad morally because it will increase the consumption of these articles, and the consumption is too great now for our good. We don't want cheap whisky and tobacco. We want rather cheap clothes for the freezing and cheap food for the starving.

LITERARY NOTES

Fords Howard & Hulbert have in press a most interesting work, Dr John Lord's historical lectures in 5 volumes, crown octavo.

Mr Charles C Perkins' new book, "Historical Handbook of Italian Sculptures," will be published during the autumn by Messrs Scribner.

The capture of Jefferson Davis will be fully treated by Mr Burton N Harrison in a paper to be published in an early number of the Century.

A new book by Marion Harland, the author of "Common Sense in the Household," entitled "The Cottage Kitchen," is in the press of Messrs Scribner.

Judge Tourgee thinks an immense amount of twaddle has been written of late on both sides of the water upon what is termed the "American element in literature." We would like to amend this by striking out all the words after "of late." We could then more heartily endorse the assertion.

Mr B F Stevens, of London, has discovered the original "Orderly Book of General Howe," belonging to the period of his command in Boston in the War of the Revolution. Its first entry is the ominous one of June 1, 1775, and it gives curious details of the campaign down to the close at Halifax. It is to be printed.

It is stated that Victor Hugo told an American visitor recently that he regarded Edgar A Poe as the prince of American poets, and that he thought that Mr Whittier was a womanly versifier, Mr Lowell a smart chatterer, and Oliver Wendell Holmes a pathetically laughable. It is perhaps unnecessary to remark that Victor Hugo is now a very old man.

Very few people have any adequate conception of what it would cost to produce a single copy of a book or a newspaper. A writer in the Advance tells this story: "A lady went into a publishing house to purchase a Bible. She looked through an extensive stock but no one was quite to her taste. Binding or margin or type should be slightly different. 'Could you not make me one?' she inquired. 'Surely,' was the reply, and the order was given for a book with some unimportant features peculiar to itself; in other respects like one before her. 'And what will the price be?' 'I must figure on that,' replied the publisher. After making a careful estimate he fixed twenty five thousand dollars as the sum at which her order could be filled. She withdrew it.

There are twenty one universities in Germany. The total number of students attending lectures during the present summer is 15,084. Protestant divinity students number 3,653. Catholic divinity students 811. The law students are 5,426, the medical students, 6,172. In the faculty of philosophy, which includes literature, mathematics and the sciences, the number is 9,11?. The University of Berlin has the largest number of students, 4,062; next comes Leipsic with 3,007, and Munich with 2,2?6; the smallest number, 231, are being taught at Rostock. The largest number of Protestant divinity students is at Leipsic, of Catholics at Wurzburg.

A writer in the Literary World says that Tennyson's earlier verses did not give promise of his later fame. "He sang of Dying Swans, of Mermaids, Owls, Geese, Lotos Eaters, etc. Christopher North said 'Alfred is greatest as an owl. All he wants is to be shot, stuffed, and stuck in a glass case to be made immortal in the British Museum.' This criticism was severe, but it was of immense value to the young poet. He stopped writing, and for ten years studied hard. He went through the splendid field of English literature, devoting much time to a careful perusal of the grand old poets of the 'elder day.' This course of study so enriched his imagination and enlarged his vocabulary that when he wrote again, he produced something worthy of his talents. The writer of pretty drawing room verses astonished the world by Locksley Hall, the Princess, In Memoriam, Maud, The Idyls of the King, etc. The latter is Tennyson's favorite work, and he devoted much time and study to it.

The young man who fondly dreams of future journalistic life upon the staff of some city daily, imagines that the offices where the great leaders are produced are models of artistic decoration adorned with gems by the old masters and well furnished with costly treasures of literature. Let him but take a peep at one of these sacred spots and the vision will fade. Even such a journal as the New York Herald, a writer in the Critic tells us, has only within a few years comfortably housed its writers. The city editor's room used to be nothing but a pen. That of the reporters had to be lighted by gas even in the daytime. The rooms of most of our Chicago dailies are about as elegantly furnished as second-rate barns, and reached, after business hours, only by climbing five or six flights of stairs. The city journalist does not yet work in palatial apartments.

Rev. William J Barnett, the pastor of the Shiloh Colored Baptist church of Williamsport, Pa., has had a remarkable history. He is the son of a once powerful African king, Dumba by name. He early came to the conclusion that a trusty trade is a valuable adjunct even to royalty, so he became a river and coast pilot at Sierra Leone, and while thus engaged was converted to Christianity and baptized in the Atlantic Ocean. Then he was kidnapped, and was being brought to New Orleans as a slave when he contrived to escape at Liverpool. From there he went to California and then back to England, Liverpool. On his second visit to England Lord Gurney became interested in him and had him well educated. In 18? he visited New York and Philadelphia and was sent to Sierra Leone as a Baptist missionary. Returning to this country after a year, he became pastor successively of churches in Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Newport and New Haven. After the war he went to Richmond and founded a strong church on Navy Hill, the site of the old slave market. After that he preached at Greenbrier White Sulphur Springs, Lexington, Staunton, Charlottesville, Gordonsville, North Danville and Louisa Court House. In all these Virginia towns he built up strong and prosperous churches. He has been in Williamsport three years, and has enjoyed remarkable success. He is now only forty three years of age.

Valuable Statistics

Alliance News.

Some time ago a request was received for statistics of the Temperance and General Provident Institution of London, England, an organization established in 1844 which has two classes of members, total abstainers and moderate non-abstainers, they are called "Temperance" and "General Sections." All pass a rigid medical and moral examination, and no hard drinkers are allowed even in the general section. What is called "expectancy of life" is pretty generally understood, it being merely a calculation founded upon actual experience of what percentage of a certain age in a given number of people will die in a specified time. The Alliance News says:

Looking now to the actual number in each section, who were expected to die and who actually died, it is interesting to trace the uniformity of superiority in the Temperance section during seventeen years for which the statistics are available—from 1866 to 1882.

Year	Temperance Section Expected	Temperance Section Actual	General Section Expected	General Section Actual
1866	100	85	1?0	180
1867	10?	?1	1?4	169
1868	10?	?5	20?	1?9
1869	11?	??	21?	201
1870	120	87	223	20?
Five yrs	?0	411	1 0?8	944
1871	1??	??	2?4	21?
1872	1??	?0	2?1	2??
1873	144	118	2?3	2?6
1874	1??	110	2?3	2?8
1875	162	1?1	2?4	2??
Five yrs	?3	511	1 2?5	1 ?80
1876	168	10?	2?9	2??
1877	1?9	1??	2?1	2?1
1878	1??	117	2?9	??
1879	1?0	104	?0	2?0
1880	?03	130	311	?01

1881	?1?	13?	??	?90
1882	2??	1??	??	??
Total	2 6??	1 8?1	4 ?08	4 ?60

It will be observed that in no single year of the series has the actual mortality in the temperance section ever approached the expectancy, while in the general section the expectancy has been exceeded by the actual in six separate years. Taking the seventeen years together, the mortality in the temperance section has been $70\frac{1}{2}$ per cent of the expectancy—in other words, $29\frac{1}{2}$ per cent below the expectancy, while in the general section the mortality has been $98\frac{1}{2}$ per cent of the expectancy—i. e., only $1\frac{1}{2}$ per cent below the expectancy. This gives a superiority of 28 per cent to the temperance section.

Supposing the temperance section mortality to have equalled the general section the deaths instead of being 1,861 would have been 2,603—a difference of 742. On the other if the general section mortality had been the same as that of the temperance section the deaths would have been 3,105 instead of 4,3??, a saving of 1,??1 lives. Supposing that a similar saving of life should have occurred in the general population during the same period, we arrive at the conclusion that the lives saved would be 200,000 yearly. Although it would be incorrect to say that the population up to 21 suffers a loss of ?? per cent from the direct effects of strong drink, it is probable that it does suffer a greater loss from the indirect influence of drinking—i. e. from the privation, neglect and unwholesome surroundings caused by the drinking of parents etc. All this is but another way of saying that our drinking customs cost us as a nation 200,000 lives annually, and blessed are they who have no part direct or indirect, in continuing that yearly carnage.

The Servian Peasant.

Contemporary Review

This peasant, with his independence, his obstinacy, his thrift, his shrewdness in small things, healthy love of liberty, his calm sense of equality, forms a solid basis for a strong nation. He is well worth a study. He may be ignorant and unpolished, but he has a certain gentleness of character, a certain dignity, which prove that he does not belong to one of the rude and inferior race of men. He is religious by heredity; he does not think enough about religion to have any convictions. Nothing would disconcert him more than to be invited by his priest to reflect upon the grounds of his belief, and the last thing his priest would do would be to ask him to try it. When he goes to church on Sundays or fete days he stands outside; he is content to know that the service is going on within. There is no danger of missing a sermon, the priest has the good sense not to preach. The ritual is performed without long and useless exhortations. When the bells begin to ring he crosses himself and returns to his house with the happy feeling that he has done his duty. He is never troubled about rites and dogmas, and reverts to his religion in hours of need like a sick man to spoon diet. The priest is useful at christenings, weddings and burials; at other times he can do without him. Continual feasts and holidays remind him of the existence of his religion, and he believes himself to be living under its influence.

London in Henry VIII.'s Time.

The National Review.

During the reign of Henry VIII. the splendor of the civic shows rose to its utmost height, and the profusion of gold and silver displayed, the costly silks, embroidered tapestries, and gorgeous dresses caused the pageant to reach a climax of magnificence which is almost incredible. It must not be imagined, however, that all this parade signified universal prosperity throughout London, and that the citizens contributed equally to its maintenance. It was far otherwise. The wealth of the metropolis was at that time engrossed by comparatively few individuals, and these spectacles were the only opportunities which the rich and powerful possessed for showing forth their opulence, while they also afforded the only amusements available to the common people. The manner of living among the generality of the citizens was at that time very miserable. According to an ancient map of the period the whole of the metropolis was then confined within the city walls, and the suburbs were almost wholly void of buildings. A few houses stood in Smithfield, and a few more led to the strand; but the fields came close up to the wall along almost the whole of its northern and eastern circumference. Charing Cross was merely connected with the city by an irregular row of houses, and the village of St. Giles lay isolated in the open country. Inside the wall were no less than 130,000 constant residents; for the merchants had then no country villas, but dwelt night and day upon their business premises. The houses were small and narrow, and the floors, says Erasmus, "were commonly of clay, strewed with rushes, under which lay unmolested an ancient collection of beer, grease, fragments, bones, and everything that is nasty." The same author tells us that the crowded manner of building and the almost total exclusion of light and air from the dwellings caused the frequent plagues with which the city was ravaged. Alleys, courts, and by-paths abounded in every direction, and the streets, though numerous, were narrow. There was but one commodious and regular road. It led through the heart of the city from Aldersgate to Ludgate, and, as it was the route of all the civic processions and shows, great care was bestowed upon it by the municipal authorities. It was almost entirely occupied by goldsmiths' shops, and all trades of a less splendid appearance were rigidly excluded.

Early Marriages.

Notes and Queries.

Lady Sarah Cadogan, daughter of William, first Earl Cadogan, was married at the age of 13 to Charles, second Duke of Richmond, aged 18. It is said that this marriage was a bargain to cancel a gambling debt between their parents, Lady Sarah being a coheiress. The young Lord March was brought from college and the little lady from her nursery for the ceremony, which took place at The Hague. The bride was amazed and silent, but the husband exclaimed: "Surely you are not going to marry me to that dowdy!" Married, however, he was, and his tutor then took him off to the continent and the bride went back to her mother. Three years after Lord March returned from his travels, but, having such a disagreeable recollection of his wife, was in no hurry to join her, and went the first evening to the theatre. There he saw a lady so beautiful that he asked who she was. "The reigning toast, Lady March, was the answer he got. He hastened to claim her and their lifelong affection for each other is much commented upon by contemporaneous writers—indeed, it is said that the duchess, who only survived him a year, died of grief.

Large Land Tortoises.

Nature.

The Mauritius acclimatization society recently handed over six tortoises to this government on condition that they should be placed on Flat Island and taken care of. The government accepted the charge, and they were accordingly placed there about two months ago. The store keeper general, (Mr. Schmidt)—who is much interested in them, states that they are completely at liberty, that they feed themselves, and are apparently doing well. Only five of them are Aldabra tortoises; the sixth is from Madagascar. They are all young and of comparatively small size. But I may perhaps mention here that there are several specimens of the Aldabra tortoise besides these, both here and in Seychelles. There is the well known large one in the garden of the royal artillery mess in Port Louis. He was here before the English occupation of Mauritius in 1810. The largest circumference of his shell measures 9 feet 3 inches. He stands 2 feet 6 inches high. In the botanical gardens of Pamplemousses there are two belonging to Mr. Cockburn Stewart, who brought them from Seychelles. They are about ten years old. The largest circumference of their shell is 7 feet 2 inches, and they stand 1 foot 8 inches high. Mr. Schmidt tells me of a very large one belonging to Mr. Castel, at Riviere Seche; and of a very large pair on the estate "Mon Tresor," near Mahebourg, belonging to Mr. Daruty; but their measurements, which have been promised me, I have not yet received. A considerable number are kept by various people of Seychelles, including a pair at government house, Mahe, the female of which recently laid eggs, and I am told that many of the tortoises kept on the Seychelles Islands frequently breed.

Amber.

London Times.

Some very interesting researches have recently been made on the flora of the amber-bearing formations of East Prussia by Messrs. Goeppert and Menge. In ancient times there must have been in this part of Europe a group of conifers comprising specimens from almost all parts of the world. Among the splendid specimens of the California conifers were the redwood, the sugar pine, and the Douglas spruce; and of the examples of the eastern states were the bald cypress, red cedar, thuya, and the Pinus rigida; from the eastern coasts of Asia were the Chilian incense cedar, the parasol fir, the arbor vitæ, the glyptostrobus, and the thuyopsis; and the Scotch fir, the spruce, and the cypress of Europe, and the callitris of Southern Africa. It appears that the deposits of amber for which the Baltic is noted are the product of generations of these resin-bearing trees. The richest deposits are situate along a strip of coast between Memel and Dantzic, though the real home of amber has been supposed to be in the bed of the Baltic between Bornholm and the main land. It rests upon cretaceous rocks and consists chiefly of their debris, forming a popular mixture known as blue earth, which appears to exist throughout the Province of Samland at the depth of 80 to 100 feet, and to contain an almost inexhaustible supply of amber. Immense quantities of amber are washed out to sea from the coast or brought down by rivulets and cast up again during the storms or in certain winds. The actual yield by quarrying is 200,000 to 300,000 pounds a year, or five times the quantity estimated to be cast up by the waves on the strip of coast above mentioned.

Glass workers in the bottle house of D. C. Cunningham & Co., Pittsburg, to the number of 150 have struck against a twenty per cent. reduction.

The Woonsocket hotel, at Woonsocket, R. I., owned by Cook, Mason & Co., was damaged $10,000 by fire yesterday.

A SPECIFIC

THE ONLY DISSOLVER OF THE POISONOUS URIC ACID WHICH EXISTS IN THE BLOOD OF RHEUMATIC AND GOUTY PATIENTS.

SALICYLICA is known as a common-sense remedy, because it strikes directly at the cause of Rheumatism, Gout and Neuralgia, while so many so-called specifics and supposed panacea only treat locally the effects.

It has been conceded by eminent scientists that outward applications, such as rubbing with oils, ointments, liniments, and soothing lotions will not eradicate these diseases which are the result of the poisoning of the blood with Uric Acid.

SALICYLICA works with marvelous effect on this acid and so removes the disorder. It is now exclusively used by all celebrated physicians of America and Europe. Highest Medical Academy of Paris reports 95 per cent. cures in three days.

REMEMBER

that SALICYLICA is a certain cure for RHEUMATISM, GOUT and NEURALGIA. The most intense pains are subdued almost instantly.

Mr. B. J. McCabe, the contractor of the gas works at the Deaf Mute Institute, and who has personally superintended the construction of the work, gave a test of their capacity last evening. We understand that everything worked satisfactorily. The illuminating power is equal in every respect to that afforded by coal gas.

In this morning's issue of the GAZETTE we insert the advertisement of Messrs. Smith & Gibb, assayers and mining engineers at Silver City, New Mexico. The firm is composed of Frank W. Gibb and Lorin N. Smith. The former has visited and is quite well known in Colorado Springs and the latter is a son of Mr. W. M. Smith, of Smith Bros., of this city. Both members of the firm are graduates of the Missouri School of Mines at Rolla. They guarantee to give prompt and careful attention to all work entrusted to them. Any of our people having business of this description at Silver City will remember Smith & Gibb.

Typographical errors in figures are very frequent in the best managed of newspapers, but when a journal pretends to print, as does the Republic, the latest news, we see no excuse for clipping a two weeks' old murder case from the Denver Tribune and publishing it as a special telegram. Very cute, indeed, for a paper that does not pay $2 a month for dispatches of any description.

The Bessemers, of Pueblo, failed to put in their appearance yesterday and the Reds were not apprised that they would not be here until nearly noon. After the Reds had gone to the expense of advertising the game, there is no excuse for such uncourteous treatment by the Bessemers. This is, however, about the way the Pueblo base ballists fulfill their engagements. This is the third time they have gone back on what they agreed to do, and we would advise our boys to ignore them in the future. Once they telegraphed for the Reds to come to Pueblo, and when they got there declined to play a game because one of their men was unable to participate in the game.

The Antlers arrivals: Ike Wise, San Francisco; T H Gray, Wyoming; Mrs Thomas Carter, Salt Lake; Miss White, Salt Lake; Baron Blenckroder, Berlin; O. W. The many friends of Mr. E. W. Douglas, chief clerk of the auditor's office of the Denver & Rio Grande railway company, will be pleased to learn of his marriage at Ogdensburg, on the 19th inst, the bride being Miss Kate B. Austin, who will be remembered by the many friends who made her acquaintance when on a visit to this city over two years since. On account of the death of Miss Austin's mother, some months ago, the wedding was a very quiet one. The presents, however, were many and most appropriate. That their appreciation of the event and regard for the happy couple should be strongly expressed, the clerks of the auditing department united in making Mr. and Mrs. Douglas a present worthy of the occasion. It consists of a full silver service of ten pieces, elaborately finished with raised carving of tropical trees, foliage and birds of plumage. The salver bears the inscription, in old English letters, "Presented to Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Douglas by the Auditing Department of the D. & R. G. Ry. Co., Sept. 19th, 1888," each of the other pieces having simply the name "Douglas." The set is one of the latest and finest patterns to be found at Brooks, Davidson & Co.'s, Denver, and was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Douglas upon their arrival in Denver last evening.

Colorado for Invalids

By DR. S. E. SOLLY,

HOUSE AT

HOWBERT BROS

TO INVALIDS AND TOURISTS!

THE

Seven Lakes Hotel

IS NOW OPEN

It is the highest Hotel of the kind in the world and in the highest forest.

The principal lake is 80 feet deep and one mile in diameter; is the highest in the world, 11,482 feet above tide water. [Report of the U. S. Signal Service.

It has the highest mail boats in the world.

"The road via Cheyenne Canon and Beaver Park to Pike's Peak, about 13,000 feet, is the highest carriage road in the world, and the volcanic crater, within which are the Hotel and Lakes, is the highest and largest in the world. It does not militate against the crater that it has but one opening."—[Chancellor of the Kansas State University.

Professor Spring says: "The scenery is extraordinary; sublime beyond description."

Said the pyrotechnist who made the fine works for the great Masonic celebration in Chicago: "I never felt so near the Great White Throne as when beholding these stupendous remains of God Almighty's fire works."

Rev. H. C. Crane says: "Along the Cheyenne road, and at the Lakes, the views are glorious. By the old lake-bed, over 13,000 feet in the air, I found many precious crystals. I have never felt so happy since my marriage day."

Mrs. Crane: "All this, and heaven too."

Bierstadt, the Rocky Mountain artist: "I never grow weary of looking at it. It changes every hour. Cheyenne mountain, over the crest of which runs the road to the Lakes and Pike's Peak, is the only mountain in the world which rises without a base. From the prairies it boldly springs up 4,000 feet."

Various journals, notably the Atlantic Monthly, and "H. H." speak kindly of the House, Lakes and road.

"O, for some kind friend to kick me up another hill," said Mark Twain before the road was made.

The water and highly developed air, ozone (progressed oxygen) cure many diseases. Exhaustion, nervousness and every symptom of paralysis disappear. So with many lung and heart troubles.

The Hotel is four miles from Pike's Peak (official survey); carriage way three miles. Everything in Hostelry, Guides, Couriers, Horses, Burros, Tents, Lunches, etc., furnished at reasonable rates. Goat's or cow's milk for invalids. Stage twice a week. Address or call on
